BONES OF A
BRITISH SPY

Opening of a Grave Recalls An Event of the Revolution.

CHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The finding at Hurley of what is believed to be part of the skeleton of Lieutenant Daniel Taylor, who was hanged as a British spy at that place in 1777, recalls an interesting incident of the Revolution. It was first recorded by Lossing in his "Field Book of the Revolution," as it was related to him by Major Bartlett at Little Britain, in this county, in 1850. The Major was a survivor of the Revolution and was then nearly ninety.

It happened in October, 1777, when Gov.
George Clinton's command was encamped at Little Britain, and the British General Clinton was endeavoring to make a junction with Burgoyne and relieve that officer's desperate straits. On the night of October 10, 1777, as the story goes, Lieutenant Brown of the American Army, captured within the lines a suspicious person, who proved to be Lieutenant Daniel Taylor of the enemy's forces.
Taylor was taken before Governor Clinton, whose name had deceived him into thinking he was in the hands of friends. When he discovered his mistake he quickly removed some object from his pocket, placed it in his mouth and swallowed it.

This aroused the suspicion of Governor Clinton, who ordered a powerful emetic to be forced into the British officer's stomach, the effect of which was the reappearance of the swallowed object. It was found to be a silver globe, evidently hollow. The removal of a screw permitted it to separate into two parts, within which a piece of paper, folded up into small compass, was discovered. This paper was a message of importance from General Clinton to General Burgoyne.
Lieutenant Taylor was tried by court-martial and condemned to be hanged as a spy. The order came to Governor Clinton just at that time to move against the British, who were at Kingston, and this movement postponed the hanging of the British Lieutenant. When Clinton's command arrived at Kingston, October 18, 1777, the British had burned that place and retreated to Rondout, where they embarked in their ships on the Hudson.
The American forces went into camp at Hurley, and there, on October 18, the condemned spy was hanged.

For many years after the Revolution and until a date within the memory of many still living thereabouts, the tree upon which Lieutenant Taylor was hanged stood at Hurley, and was known as the Spy Tree, although few knew why.
That the unfortunate officer was buried beneath the tree on which he was hanged, had been entirely forgotten until the finding of the bones the other day by laborers excavating on the Ellenville and Kingston Railroad at Hurley. Then the tradition was revived by a Kingston antiquarian.

PRINT CLOTH AND POLITICS.

A New Wrinkle for American Export Manufacturers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—In Paraguay the women and children show their active political sympathies by wearing the colors of their parties.

"If American manufacturers sell their print cloths to the people of Paraguay they must furnish goods with either a red or blue base," John N.
Ruffin, United States Consul at Asuncion, Paraguay, explained in an interview last night. Mr. Ruffin is arranging to return to his post in about two weeks.
He has been the consul at Asunacion for five years, and has spent many more years in South America.

"There are two leading political parties in Paraguay, the Colorados and the Azules," he continued. "The color of the Colorados is red and of the Azules, blue.
The party in power now is the Colorados, or we might be properly called the Liberals. The intense partisanship of every man, woman and child is simply astonishing. A member of the 'Red' party would no more allow his wife or children to wear clothing in which the predominating color was blue than he would vote the 'Blue' ticket himself. The 'Blues' are the same way, and as a result the party's colors have had a distinct action in the colors of the clothing of the people. I feel that American print cloth manufacturers ought to know this in order that they may be guided in the patterns they ship to Paraguay."

Mr. Ruffin is enthusiastic over the future possibilities of Paraguay, and is anxious to aid in developing trade between that country and the United States. He says the present great barrier to trade is the lack of direct steamships between the United States and Paraguay and the other South American countries.

Unsatisfactory Edict.

PEKING, Aug. 28.—The Imperial edict forbidding the importation of arms and munitions of war is not satisfactory to the foreign Ministers. A meeting of the Ministers has been called to discuss the edict. It ignores the vital fact that the prohibition applies to the Government and that it is part of the Chinese punishment. The edict makes it appear to be merely the Government's voluntary act, prohibiting Chinese subjects from importing arms and ammunition as the country is disturbed by brigands.

RATS AND THE
BUBONIC PLAGUE

Dr. Rosenau's Test of a Disease for Exterminating Rodents.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Since it became known that the bubonic plague was spread by rats, the question of means of destroying them has assumed greater proportions. The discovery of a perfect rat destroyer would be of vast benefit to the public health.

M. J. Rosenau, director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the United States Marine Hospital Service, has recently investigated a new method for destroying rats by means of cultures of a certain bacillus. This method was developed by J.
Danz. The virus which he obtained, while far from being a certain means of exterminating rats in a particular place, may be used as one weapon in the fight against them.

A culture of a bacillus isolated from a spontaneous epidemic among harvest mice was selected, and grown in bouillon to accustom it to an existence without oxygen. This was accomplished by growing the culture in flasks as completely filled as possible. The flasks were placed in an incubator until the culture developed, and then kept at an ordinary temperature until a deposit formed and the bouillon became perfectly clear.

From the flasks the culture was passed into a collodion sack, which was kept for from a day to a day and a half in the abdominal cavity of a rat, then kept anew in ordinary bouillon and thence again in flasks. This series of operations was repeated several times, and at the fourth or fifth repetition a decided increase in virulence for mice was noted.

Mice were then replaced in the experiments by young rats a month or six weeks old. Next older rats were used.
Proceeding in this way the culture was specialized, and Danz finally succeeded in rendering it regularly virulent for gray rats, black rats and white rats, whereas it was originally only slightly virulent for the gray rats and entirely ineffective for the others.

Dr. Rosenau fed 115 rats with the cultures during a course of various experiments with the virus. Of these only forty-six died. The results seem to depend upon the amount of culture ingested. By starving the rats for a couple of days and then giving them all they would eat a very positive result was obtained. Twenty-seven rats so fed all died within a week. If the rats get only a small amount, however, not only is the effect uncertain, but the survivors become immune, and can feed upon the cultures to their hearts' content and be none the worse for it.

It would seem that the virus is not unlike the laying out of a chemical poison, depending as it does upon the amount ingested. But, while the chemical poison has the advantage of not producing an immunity, the virus has the very decided advantage of being, so far as is known, harmless for man and domestic animals.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

Money to Be Spent on Union and Southern Pacific Routes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—It is understood, avers the World, that at the meeting of the Union Pacific directors today an announcement will be made of plans calling for the expenditure of $40,000,000 on the Southern and Central Pacific systems. The amount will be about equally divided between the two roads and is to be used for improvements. On the Central Pacific the principal improvement is a tunnel through the Cascade mountains to cost more than $5,000,000.

On the Southern Pacific it is proposed to relay almost the entire main line with heavier rails, to change motive power and to purchase oil lands and make general repairs.

Tramps Ruin a Home.

WATERBURY (Conn.), Aug. 28.—For a week past tramps have been holding high revel in the Log Cabin, the beautifully furnished home of Mrs.
Helen Atkins McKay, who, with her daughter, is traveling in California. The Log Cabin is two miles from the center of the town of Bristol. Mrs. McKay's secretary made the discovery last night.
The costly stable and servants' quarters near by were also looted. The interior of the Log Cabin was found to be in utter confusion. The house had been ransacked and the beautiful wall decorations ruthlessly ruined. While costly rugs and curtains were soaked with tobacco juice. The McKays are among the wealthiest of the Connecticut families and have elegant homes in several states.

Dragged by Frightened Horse.

RED LODGE, Mont., Aug. 28.—Far-quhar Gillies, a wealthy sheep man, was dragged to death by a frightened horse on the range near his ranch. He was leading the horse by a rope having a slip knot fastened to his arm. The horse became frightened and started off at breakneck speed, the rope becoming tangled so that Gillies could not loosen it. He was dragged 500 yards over the rocky ground and when finally rescued was terribly cut and bruised. He never regained consciousness. He owned about 10,000 sheep and a large area of land.
